RECEIVED WOUND FROM SHOT GUN

Eli Ireland, Victim of Accidental
Shooting Last Evening While Asleep on Barn Floor.

LEFT ARM BADLY LACERATED

May Not be Necessary to Amputate —Had Been Drinking While in This City.

Eli Ireland, a farm laborer, was the victim of an accidental shooting last evening about six o'clock which may result in the loss of his left arm. Ireland, it seems, had been partaking pretty freely of liquid refreshments while in this city yesterday and went to the home of Jesse Morris, north of here, in a somewhat intoxicated condition. He and Morris are friends and it was arranged that he should remain there over night.

The man carried a double barrel shotgun while here and this he took with him to the Morris home. Just why he carried the gun is not known. Ireland laid down on a pile of hay on the barn floor with the barrel of the gun pointing toward his left shoulder. In some inexplicable manner the gun was discharged, the contents entering the muscles of his left arm. The arm was badly shattered and the muscles torn, but Dr. Coleman, who attended the injured man, said that it would probably not be necessary to amputate unless complications arose.

Ireland in explaining the accident, says that he had been asleep, but remembers clearly of having seen a dog jump over him and in doing so, touched the trigger. People to reach his side first discredited this theory as there was no dog around the barn. Ireland must have been seeing things because those who saw him here yesterday say he had been drinking heavily.

He had formerly worked on the Robert Hinchman farm and from what is known has had trouble with his wife. They have not lived together for some time and because he carried a gun it was rumored he was hunting her. For some time Ireland has been living in a tent in Fayette county.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR DAMAGE SUIT

Case of Harry and Riley Colter
Against Big Four Railroad,
Sent to Fayette County.

PLAINTIFFS ASK FOR $3200

The papers in a damage suit, in which Harry Colter and Riley Colter of Rush county ask judgment against the C. C. C. & St. L. Railway company were filed in the local court today, says the Connorsville News. The case has been venue here after encountering many vicissitudes in the Rush county courts. The plaintiffs ask judgment in the sum of $3200, alleging that, about a year ago, a herd of twenty-one horses owned by them were shipped from St. Louis over the C. C. C. & St. L. for Milroy, Indiana, but that the train was wrecked on its way and the whole herd destroyed. They set forth that they have received no compensation at all. Watson, Titsworth & Green are their attorneys.

FAIL TO ANNOUNCE RESULT OF INQUIRY

Traction Officials Have Not Made Known Decision as Result of Wreck Investigation.

PRES. HENRY EXPECTED HERE

It was expected that some announcement of the outgrowth of the investigation of the I. & C. wreck of Saturday, which was held in Indianapolis yesterday by I. & C. officials and the State Railroad Commission would be forthcoming today, but such was not the case. Yesterday morning the traction line officials had the members of the two train crews up on the "green carpet" and in the afternoon they were turned over to the railroad commission for their inquiry.

In both instances the investigation was held behind closed doors, but it was announced that Charles L. Henry, president of the I. & C., would give out a statement today, as a result of the inquiry. Mr. Henry was expected to come here this afternoon, but never arrived. James Anderson, motorman, and James Riggs, conductor of the passenger crew, and Harry Sparks, conductor of the freight, were all back here today, but would not discuss the nature of the inquiry.

PLAN MEMORIAL FOR B. S. PARKER

New Castle Proposes to Raise Fund to Erect Monument Over Late Poet's Grave.

TO BE STARTED IN SCHOOLS

May Set Aside Day For Exercise and Collection of Beginning of Fund.

A movement, most commendable, and very timely, is being contemplated in this city to raise by popular subscription, a fund which will be used for the erection in Southmound of a memorial over the grave of Benjamin S. Parker, Henry county's most illustrious literary man, says the New Castle Courier.

The matter has been under contemplation for several days and is gradually assuming a definite organization in which men of prominence throughout the city is or will become identified. The proposition also promises to become the special duty of every secret order in the city and will be, if present plans are carried out, the one foremost plan of every citizen in the municipality. It will result in a universal exertion to pay a delayed tribute to one of Indiana's foremost poets and because of the delay will be more pronounced.

It is first proposed to have a Parker memorial day in all of the schools of the city and county. At the exercises a collection will be taken to form a nucleus of the fund contemplated for a monument. Following the action of the schools the matter will be thrown open to the public generally and every inhabitant of the county will be given the opportunity to contribute.

Under such a plan there seems no doubt but that a big sum could be accumulated. It will undoubtedly be successful and will result in an imperishable memorial to the deceased writer, statesman, philosopher and citizen.

Preacher-Editor Would be Great
Junior Sagamore of Red Men.

Rev. F. Wilson Kaler of Andersonville passed through the city Monday on his way to Greensburg, where he spent the day as the guest of his brother, Walter Kaler, editor of the Greensburg Democrat, says the Shelbyville Democrat. Mr. Kaler filled his regular appointment at the Christian church at Flat Rock Sunday. In addition to his work as a minister, the Rev. Mr. Kaler is also prominent in Red Men circles over the State. He is a candidate for the position of great junior sagamore of the reservation of Indiana and his prospects for landing the coveted honor are exceptionally bright.

DID GIRL ELOPE WITH MINISTER?

Perplexing Question is Brought up by Many Telephone Calls to Clerk's Office.

DID MISS EVANS GET LICENSE?

Young Woman Visited at Woliung
Home And Her Sudden Departure Causes Furore.

One Miss Evans, place of residence unknown, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Woliung, at the corner of Tenth and Jackson streets and thereby hangs a tale of uncertain beginning and more uncertain ending. Yesterday Miss Evans left, evidently for parts unknown and that was the occasion for the excitement that reigned in the neighborhood of the Woliung home last evening and this morning.

Persons called at the clerk of the circuit court's office this morning and asked if a marriage license had been issued to a Miss Evans and a Mr. Wagoner, alleged to be a minister from Elwood. At first the clerk refused to answer the solicitous inquiry. At last he saw that he would be answering telephone calls the remainder of the day and he finally told one anxious woman that he had not issued a license to any such people.

It is apparent that Miss Evans has eloped although the story can not be confirmed. When called by phone this afternoon Mrs. Woliung admitted that a Miss Evans had been visiting at her house but so far as giving out any other information was concerned, she drew the line there. She said that Miss Evans left yesterday, and that she would not talk for publication until she had received some word from her.

Whether or not the young woman in question is a relative of the Woliung family is not known. And why they should object to her eloping with a minister is another question which remains unanswered. At any rate the persons who called at the clerk's office were greatly agitated over something.

WIFE DESERTER IS IN THE TOILS

Harry Talbert is Arrested Near Andersonville by Franklin County
Sheriff and Brought Here.

IS CHARGED IN INDICTMENT

Harry Talbert, charged in a grand jury indictment with wife desertion, was arrested near Andersonville yesterday by Sheriff Fred Baker of Franklin county and brought here last night and turned over to Sheriff Clata Bebout, who placed Talbert in jail. His bond was fixed at five hundred dollars.

It is said that Talbert married a woman near New Salem and later deserted her, going to his old home near Andersonville. The last grand jury returned an indictment against him and he was finally located by the Franklin county sheriff.

CAUSED A NEAR FIGHT

Bad Liquor and Street Men Proves Poor Combination.

Bad liquor was the cause of a near fight last night at the barn where the Adams Construction Company's teams are kept. Several of the men were drinking and an argument resulted. There was a tossing aside of coats and many blustering brags of what might be done but the whole upshot of the affair was that no blows were struck.

AGITATION HAS NO FOUNDATION

Common Rumor That Saloons Shall
Not be Located Within 500
Feet of Church.

LAWYERS SAY IT IS LEGAL

Clyde Miller Plans to Open Saloon
in Grand Hotel Thursday—
Buys Restaurant Lease.

The question as to whether or not the Proctor regulative law makes any provisions for the location of a saloon with relation to a church or house of worship of any sort has been a much-mooted question here for several days, especially since the opening of the saloons Saturday. Attorneys, those employed by the "wets" and "drys" alike declare that they have been unable to find any clause in the law which provides for the location of saloons in such instances.

It has been common rumor here that neither one of the saloons which opened Saturday had a right to do business in view of the fact that they disregarded the Proctor law. It was argued that the law provides that no saloon or place where liquor is sold shall be located within five hundred feet of a church. The prevailing opinion is that the law has such a clause in it.

It has been pointed out that the McCormie and O'Neil places were both within five hundred feet of the First Presbyterian church and that the county commissioners had a perfect right to revoke their licenses on that ground. It also has been stated that James Smith's license could be revoked on the same theory, in view of the fact that the room where he will install a saloon is only a few doors from the upstairs room over the Poe jewelry store where the Christian Scientists worship.

But all of the rumors and alleged plans are without avail, as attorneys say that such an agitation is useless. They believe that the foundation for the rumor is the fact that such a clause was once embodied in one of the first drafts of the law and published in the newspapers. It was never allowed to go through when the law was passed.

There is a clause in the law which provides that a place where liquor is sold shall not be located within a certain distance of a township school. Attorneys construe that to mean that a road house shall not be located too near a school house.

Clyde Miller, who was granted a saloon license by the commissioners at their last meeting, plans to open his saloon in the Grand Hotel by Thursday. It was thought that the Miller place would not be opened before the summer months, as the McAllister restaurant was located in the room and the owner had a lease on it for several months yet. Clyde Miller has persuaded McAllister to release his right to the room for a financial consideration and active preparations are being made to open the bar, which will make the third saloon in Rushville.

P. A. STOLYPIN

Russian Premier Who Has Suddenly Resigned Post.

St. Petersburg, March 21.—Premier Stolypin has resigned, and it is understood that the czar has accepted the resignation, statements differ as to the cause for the sudden step, which has created intense surprise in political circles. It is reported that Kokovtsov, minister of finance, has been named to succeed Stolypin.

CAN'T ACCOUNT FOR CHANGE OF ORDERS

Soldiers At San Antonio Are Bewildered.

San Antonio, March 21.—Bringing about a radical change in orders regulating the immediate movements of the division of the army now being mobilized on the big plain at the Fort Sam Houston reservation, something has happened in Washington or is happening. With one squadron of cavalry waiting orders to jump westward on a train of the Southern Pacific line which lay ready for instant departure, and regimental commanders of every unit in the encampment having reason to believe that within a fortnight they would be commanding their men on campaign, orders were received instituting the partial and temporary disintegration of the division and the train which was to carry the cavalry squadron to the Pecos river and further west, still stands ready but empty.

This sudden change of front, which is known to have been dictated from Washington, has left commanders and high privates equally on the raw edge of indecision. The puzzlement produced is complete.

If any other element was needed to bring this effervescence to a boil, that same was furnished by Senor Alfonso Madero, the head of the local insurrectionists' junta and brother of the provisional president of Mexico.

When Senor Madero was found at his home on Main avenue, entirely surrounded by dark-visaged men with mysterious packets of papers and bulky envelopes under their arms, he said that he had some real news from Washington. "From what I learn from the confidential agent of the provisional government there," he said, "I am very sure that within the week the United States government will recognize the belligerency of the provisional government of Mexico." When pressed for further details of this unusual prophecy, Senor Madero smiled and shook his head. "It will all come out in time," he added, cheerfully.

Judge Roberts will decide on the parole petition today. Nine of the jurors in the case joined in the petition asking for the parole. Messel was charged with killing his sister to prevent her telling about alleged criminal assaults committed by her father and her brother. The father is now in prison for life.

THE PRESIDENT TAKES CONTROL

"War" Game to Be Handled
From White House.

CARTER MUST GIVE ACCOUNT

Hereafter No Orders Must Be Issued From "the Field" Until the President Has Been Given Twenty-Four Hours' Notice of the Same—Preparations For Southern Movement of Troops Have Been Discontinued.

Washington, March 1.—Upon his return to Washington from his southern vacation, Mr. Taft began to get first-hand information about the situation in Mexico. The president looked over a report submitted by the state and navy departments showing the extent of the maneuvers in Texas and along the Mexican border since the first troops were ordered south. He had two conferences with Secretary of War Dickinson, and one with General Leonard Wood, chief of staff, a short talk with Acting Secretary of State Huntington Wilson, and a longer consultation with Ambassador De La Barra of Mexico. No formal statement was issued by the White House or by any of those whom the president called into consultation. It is known, however, that the president will take up the Mexican situation with his cabinet at the meeting today.

Was Partially in the Dark.

During his absence Mr. Taft was partially in the dark as to the movement of troops and the diplomatic negotiations that have been conducted incident to the situation in Mexico, but from now on will keep his finger on the pulse of the administration. He will be consulted about every move that is made on the border, and he will take direct personal interest in all negotiations. An order was at once sent to Major General W. H. Carter, in command at San Antonio, directing him to notify the war department hereafter of every movement of the troops twenty-four hours in advance of the time when such movement is to be made. With this order in effect the president will be in a position to countermand any order of the commanding general in the field which does not meet with his approval.

Relieves Mexico's Anxiety.

A report has gained circulation here to the effect that Mexico has sounded this government with a view to ascertaining whether the United States could be induced to withdraw the army from the border. This proposition, it was said, was touched upon in the conference between the president and Ambassador De La Barra. Doubt is expressed that this government would disband the army and send the various regiments comprising it to their respective stations. However, the belief prevails that the order forwarded to General Carter prohibiting any movement of troops without first consulting Washington was issued as a means of relieving the anxiety of the Mexican authorities. When the military movement began announcement was made that the troops would remain in Texas for several months. So far as can be learned the authorities have no intention of changing their minds. Whatever the developments in Mexico, the war officials plan to go ahead with the maneuvers for the benefit of the army and officers of the state military organizations. But it is said that no more troops are to be dispatched to the border from the point of mobilization at San Antonio.

DON'T BELIEVE THEM

Many of the Tales of Fighting Have No Foundation in Fact.

Laredo, Tex., March 21.—Sensational stories sent out from here regarding alleged serious disturbances in Mexico during the past few days have no foundation except reports of two fights, one Saturday near Montemorelos, and the other yesterday in Matatlan, neither of which can be traced to better source than talk by a trainman, who said five federal officers were lynched after a battle at Montemorelos, in which 300 insurgents captured about fifty federals. He also asserted that the town of Matatlan was captured after a short fight.

DON'T SAY YOU'RE OLD

You only feel old.

Digestive organs are weak—don't assimilate food as they used to

Other organs act more slowly and less effectually.

Blood is thin and sluggish.

Renewal of strength does not equal the wear and tear of your system. That's what makes you feel old.

Nothing is the world will tone up and invigorate those weak, backsliding organs, make rich blood and create strength so quickly as Vinol.

Vinol is not a nostrum, simply the medicinal elements of the cod's livers, with the useless nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron added. The Lowest in Price of these Five Blends of Quality may have the Flavor you like best—Be Palate-Wise Not Price-prejudiced

Your Taste for Coffee is a matter of Blend—Not Price

What is good Coffee? Five people will have five different standards. Like men's judgments on tobacco or women's tastes as to beautiful gowns. A generation of research shows five general classes of coffee tastes in America.

Golden Sun Coffee is the general name for all these individual Blends. Money can do nothing more to perfect each Blend. We have the highest paid experts, and under their supervision it is guarded and prepared for you from picking to packing. Free from germs and contamination, Golden Sun Coffee comes to you in airtight packages—with all the oil in the berry. Coffee from the plant is about 95% oil—very volatile oil. To give you the cup that tickles the nostrils and delights the palate, that oil must not be allowed to evaporate. From the plant to the pot this volatile oil is preserved in Golden Sun Coffee.

Don't try to get the coffee you really want from the open bin or the peddler who has no facilities—Impossible!

Ask the grocer for your Blend of Golden Sun Coffee. He will show you the Table of Tastes so that you may readily choose the flavor that best suits your individual coffee palate.

EDITORIALETTES.

Greetings. Spring has come.

This is the first day of the season when poets thrive and yet the greens crop is not yet on the market.

We have received a request to mention the house fly today, this, the first day of spring. About the only thing we can think of is that we exterminated the house fly last fall and do not believe it will be back.

We have been told by a Certain Party who visits these parts often that there are four stages between a lawyer and his client. You first send the lawyer a retainer, then a refresher, then a reminder and as a last resort the remainder.

Saw a straw hat on the street today. You don't believe that? Well, neither do we.

Summer is coming all right, but we can't see where any possible good is to come from it. No circuses have been billed for Rushville yet.

It does seem that no one wants to own the brick streets after so much trouble was experienced in getting them.

The man who changes them will have a cold shoulder for everyone.

Equinoctial storms are now due, but we do not mean to be pessimistic.

AMUSEMENTS

The Palace theater will have a complete change of program.

The Star Grand will give another big double program tonight. The first film is a Bison entitled "The Salted Mine" and the second is an Atlas entitled "A Letter to the Stork." Both films are dramas. The Judy Sisters will give a change of program and will sing a late song entitled "Swinging." Mr. Eward will sing the illustrated song entitled "Don't You Mind it Honey."

The Vaudeur will offer the same big program tonight with the silhouette pictures as a vaudeville attraction. The unusual program offered by the company was appreciated. A complete change of program will be given tonight. The Imp film, "Reunited," a drama of stirring action and thrilling moments will be shown. The great western Bison film, "The Fatal Gold Nugget" will be the other picture. It is a story of a western mining camp. A new illustrated song will be sung.

"Honeymoon Trail" which Hough, Adams and Howard wrote as a sister vehicle to their other great successes, "A Stubborn Cinderella," will be the attraction at the Marat theater on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Saturday matinee, March 23, 24, 25. It will be presented by a cast of over half a hundred singers, comedians and dancers, the roster of principals containing such clever and high salaried performers as Louis Kelsc, Arline Boling, Fred Wyckoff, Carl George, Rose Gildea, Bessie Armstrong, Lew Lawton and Clara Dalton. "Honeymoon Trail" has a Chicago run of 225 consecutive performances at the LaSalle theater to its credit, and divided last summer between Boston and Philadelphia, playing "The Hub" and the "City of Brotherly Love" six weeks each, to record-breaking business. It has been aptly described by the Boston Traveler as a "riot of color, action, lights, music and girls." The famous LaSalle theater chorus, comprising thirty shapely girls who can really sing and dance is a feature.

CORONER FILES REPORT

Finds Thomas Chew Met Death From Rupture of Arteries.

Dr. M. M. Wells, coroner of Shelby county, Saturday, filed his report in the inquest of Thomas G. Chew, who was killed in an explosion at the Adventist academy near Boggs town, Tuesday, February 28, says the Shelbyville Democrat. The report of the coroner reads as follows: "I, M. M. Wells, coroner of Shelby county, after viewing the body of Thomas G. Chew, hearing evidence and making other necessary inquiries, find that death was caused by internal hemorrhage, due to rupture of several large arteries by explosion of acetylene gas lighting plant."

EQUAL TO BARGAIN DAY.

Greensburg News: Two saloons opened in Rushville for business on Saturday. This action breaks the long continued spell of "dryness" in that city which was of a little more than two years' duration, and it is said that the eagerness of some of the thirsty ones to be in at the beginning was equal to the usual rush attending a bargain day sale.

The Cause of Most Sickness

A great many cases of sickness are caused by neglecting the bowels and we should pay more attention to this important fact. You stand a better chance of enjoying better health and happiness if you use Raymond Casarea Laxative Tablets composed of casarea, Senna, licorice, wintergreen and a compound, making a mild, pleasant laxative, works freely and keeps the system in a healthy condition. Our Ten Commandments.

- Rule 1. Don't Lie—it wastes our time and yours. We'll sure find out in the end. Buy a Ford Car and you won't have to lie about your tire expense.
- Rule 2. Do not Steal an automobile when you can buy a Model T Ford Turing Car for $780. It's cheaper to buy.
- Rule 3. "Don't buy a Ford Car because it is cheap, but because it is the best." Henry Ford.
- Rule 4. Ford Cars have proven themselves to wear better than any of them, because of the superior workmanship and material used in their construction. "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor."
- Rule 5. Vanadium steel is used in all axles and spindles, crankshaft and springs, is heat treated and does not crystallize. Wheels will not drop off when given the last strain. Remember the injunction, "Thou shalt not kill."
- Rule 6. Henry Ford has led us out of the land of the wilderness as it were—out of the land of bondage of the Selden Patent and demonstrated that he is no false leader. Follow him and use Ford Cars.
- Rule 7. When you talk Ford Automobile, put a four cycle, four cylinder, twenty horse power Ford engine into your talk and take off the muffler. It will do the work, fear not.
- Rule 8. Covet not anything which is thy neighbors, but go and buy a Ford Car and enjoy life as he does.
- Rule 9. Neither a borrower nor a lender be. Own a Ford Car and be happy in the land which the Lord, thy God giveth thee.
- Rule 10. Buy a Ford Car so that your troubles may cease and your days be long upon the earth.

CHAPTER IV.

The Fleeing Woman.

Mr. Grimm went straight to a quiet nook of the smoking-room and there, after a moment, Mr. Campbell joined him. The bland benevolence of the chief's face was disturbed by the slightest questioning uplift of his brows as he dropped into a seat opposite Mr. Grimm, and lighted a cigar. Mr. Grimm raised his hand, and a servant who stood near, approached them.

"An ice—here," Mr. Grimm directed, tersely.

The servant bowed and disappeared, and Mr. Grimm hastily scribbled something on a sheet of paper and handed it to his chief.

"There is a reading, in the Morse code, of a message that seems to be unintelligible," Mr. Grimm explained. "I have reason to believe it is in the Continental code. You know the Continental—I don't."

Mr. Campbell read this: "St5ut man fed gaje neaf j5nsef-at5t," and then came the unknown, dash-dot-dash-dash. "That," he explained, "is Y in the Continental code." It went on: "d55f b5ing 5ver when g goes."

The chief read it off glibly: "Stout man, red face, near conservatory door. Bring over when G goes." "Very well!" commented Mr. Grimm ambiguously.

With no word of explanation, he rose and went out, pausing at the door

"What Sort of Paper Was It?" inquired Mr. Grimm.

To take the ice which the servant was bringing in. The seat where he had left Senorita Rodriguez was vacant; so was the chair where Miss Thorne had been. He glanced about inquiringly, and a servant who stood stolidly near the conservatory door approached him.

"Pardon, sir, but the lady who was sitting here," and he indicated the chair where Miss Thorne had been sitting, "fainted while dancing, and the lady who was with you went along when she was removed to the ladies' dressing-room, sir."

Mr. Grimm's teeth closed with a little snap.

"Did you happen to notice any time this evening a stout gentleman, with red face, near the conservatory door?" he asked.

The servant pondered a moment, then shook his head.

"No, sir."

"Thank you."

Mr. Grimm was just turning away, when there came the sharp, vibrant cra-sh! of a revolver, somewhere off to his left. The president! That was his first thought. One glance across the room to where the chief executive stood, in conversation with two other gentlemen, reassured him. The choler blue eyes of the president had opened a little at the sound, then he calmly resumed the conversation. Mr. Grimm impulsively started toward the little group, but already a cordon was being drawn there—a cordon of quiet-faced, keen-eyed men, unobtrusively forcing their way through the crowd. There was Johnson, and Hastings, and Blair, and half a dozen others.

The room had been struck dumb. Then dancers stopped, with tense, inquiring looks, and the plaintive whine of the orchestra, far away, faltered, then ceased. There was one brief instant of utter silence in which white-faced women clung to the arms of their escorts, and the brilliant galaxy of colors halted. Then, after a moment, there came clearly through the stillness, the excited, guttural command of the German ambassador. "Keep on playing, you tam fools! Keep on playing!"

The orchestra started again tremulously. Mr. Grimm nodded a silent approval of the ambassador's command, then turned away to his left, in the direction of the shot. After the first dismay, there was a general movement of the crowd in that direction, a movement which was checked by Mr. Campbell's appearance upon a chair, with a smile on his bland face. "No harm done," he called. "One of the officers present dropped his revolver, and it was accidentally discharged. No harm done."

There was a moment's excited chatter, deep-drawn breaths of relief, the orchestra swung again into the interrupted rhythm, and the dancers moved on. Mr. Grimm went straight to his chief, who had stepped down from the chair. Two other secret service men stood behind him, blocking the doorway that opened into a narrow hall.

"This way," directed the chief tersely.

Mr. Grimm walked along beside him. They skirted the end of the ballroom until they came to another door opening into the hall. Chief Campbell pushed it open, and entered. One of his men stood just inside.

"What was it, Gray?" asked the chief.

"Senor Alvarez of the Mexican legation, was shot," was the reply.

"Dead?"

"Only wounded. He's in that room," and he indicated a door a little way down the hall. "Fairchild, two servants and a physician are with him."

"Who shot him?"

"Don't know. We found him lying in the hall here."

Still followed by Mr. Grimm, the chief entered the room, and together they bent over the wounded man. The bullet had entered the torso just below the ribs on the left side.

"It's a clean wound," the physician was explaining. "The bullet passed through. There's no immediate danger."

Senor Alvarez opened his eyes, and stared about him in bewilderment; then alarm overspread his face, and he made spasmodic efforts to reach the inside breast pocket of his coat. Mr. Grimm obligingly thrust his hand into the pocket and drew out its contents, the while Senor Alvarez struggled frantically.

"Just a moment," Mr. Grimm advised quietly. "I'm only going to let you see if it is here. Is it?"

He held the papers, one by one, in front of the wounded man, and each time a shake of the head was his answer. At last Senor Alvarez closed his eyes again.

"What sort of a paper was it?" inquired Mr. Grimm.

"None of your business," came the curt answer.

"Who shot you?"

"None of your business."

"A man?"

Senor Alvarez was silent.

"A woman?"

Still silence.

With some new idea Mr. Grimm turned away suddenly and started out into the hall. He met a maid-servant at the door, coming in. Her face was blanched, and she stuttered through sheer excitement.

"A lady, sir—a lady—" she began babblingly.

Mr. Grimm calmly closed the door, shutting in the wounded man, Chief Campbell and the others. Then he caught the maid sharply by the arm and shook some coherence into her disordered brain.

"A lady—she ran away, sir," the girl went on, in blank surprise.

"What lady?" demanded Mr. Grimm, coldly. "Where did she run from? Why did she run?" The maid stared at him with mouth agape. "Begin at the beginning."

"I was in that room, farther down the hall, sir," the maid explained. "The door was open. I heard the shot, and it frightened me so—I don't know—I was afraid to look out right away, sir. Then, an instant later, a lady came running along the hall, sir—that way," and she indicated the rear of the house. "Then I came to the door and looked out to see who it was, and what was the matter, sir. I was standing there when a man—a man came along after the lady, and banged the door in my face, sir. The door had a spring lock, and I was so—so frightened and excited I couldn't open it right away, sir—and when I did I came here to see what was the matter." She drew a deep breath and stopped.

"That all?" demanded Mr. Grimm. "Yes, sir, except—except the lady had a pistol in her hand, sir—"

Mr. Grimm regarded her in silence for a moment.

"Who was the lady?" he asked at last.

"I forget her name, sir. She was the lady who—who fainted in the ballroom, sir, just a few minutes ago." Whatever emotion may have been aroused within Mr. Grimm it certainly found no expression in his face. When he spoke again his voice was quite calm.

"Miss Thorne, perhaps?"

"Yes, sir, that's the name—Miss Thorne. I was in the ladies' dressing-room when she was brought in, sir, and I remember some one called her name."

Mr. Grimm took the girl, still a-quiver with excitement, and led her along the hall to where Gray stood.

"Take this girl in charge, Gray," he directed. "Look her up, if necessary. Don't permit her to say one word to anybody—anybody, you understand, except the chief."

Mr. Grimm left them there. He passed along the hall, glancing in each room as he went, until he came to a short flight of stairs leading toward the kitchen. He went on down silently. The lights were burning, but the place was still, deserted. All the servants who belonged there were evidently, for the moment, transferred to other posts. He passed on through the kitchen and out the back door into the street.

A little distance away, leaning against a lamp post, a man was standing. He might have been waiting for a car. Mr. Grimm approached him.

"Beg pardon," he said, "did you see a woman come out of the back door, there?"

"Yes, just a moment or so ago," replied the stranger. "She got into an automobile at the corner. I imagine this is hers," and he extended a handkerchief, a dainty, perfumed trifle of lace. "I picked it up immediately after she passed."

Mr. Grimm took the handkerchief and examined it under the light. For a time he was thoughtful, with lowered eyes, which, finally raised, met those of the stranger with a scrutinizing stare.

"Why," asked Mr. Grimm slowly and distinctly, "why did you slam the door in the girl's face?"

"Why did I—what?" came the answering question.

"Why did you slam the door in the girl's face?" Mr. Grimm repeated slowly.

The stranger stared in utter amazement—an amazement so frank, so unacted, so genuine, that Mr. Grimm was satisfied.

"Did you see a man come out of the door?" Mr. Grimm pursued.

"No. Say, young fellow, I guess you've had a little too much to drink, haven't you?"

But by that time Mr. Grimm was turning the corner.
